This includes the fund manager's effort to ensure:

-Availability of sufficient liquidity to meet any expected redemption requests

-The fund does not assume any unnecessary investment risk related to its investment objectives and allocates risks in a cautious and prudent manner, without prejudice to the aforementioned investment objectives and policies.

-The Risk Management Department submits to the Fund's Board of Directors periodic reports on the fund's performance, discussing the risks related to the fund. Accordingly, these risks are assessed, and the necessary measures are taken to achieve the interest of the unit holder in line with applicable laws and regulations.

n) The benchmark, as well as information about the provider of the benchmark and the bases and the methodology used to calculate the benchmark.

- Benchmark: Al- Bilad Ideal Ratings Index of Domestic Saudi Sovereign Sukuk Exchange-traded fund.
- The index provider: Ideal Ratings, a company that provides services to support investment decision-making.
- Principles and methodology used to calculate the indicator:
- Index: a component of the Saudi sovereign sukuk denominated in the Saudi riyal and listed on the main Saudi stock exchange (Tadawul) and linked to a market maker, with a remaining maturity of 3 months or more.
- The index components are reviewed monthly by the service provider, and the fund manager re-balances the index fund components on a monthly basis.
- Profit distribution policy for the index: The index will not reinvest the returns on the sukuk because the fund will distribute the returns on the sukuk.
- Publication of the index: Unitholders can view the performance of the fund and the performance of the index on the fund manager's website. The fund manager also discloses the securities that make up the fund and the weights of each on the fund manager's website and the main Saudi stock market website (Tadawul)
- Index calculation method: The index value is calculated on the basis of the market value of each instrument in the index, and the market value is calculated based on the price of the highest order of the instrument concerned with the calendar at the close of the main Saudi Stock Exchange (Tadawul) multiplied by the size of the issue.
- The percentage of deviation from the index: the fund manager seeks to limit the percentage of deviation from the index to a maximum of 1.5%, which may arise for various reasons such as the fund incurring fees, increasing the cash ratio in the fund, or when the timing of profits in the index differs compared to the fund. In the event that there is a big difference between the performance of the index and the performance of the fund, due to the increase in the cash ratio or due to the relative mismatch of the index components with the fund portfolio components, the fund manager will reduce the cash ratio as much as possible and track the index components.

- o) Where derivatives are used, there must be a prominent statement that states the purpose of using such instruments (e.g. efficient portfolio management, meeting investment objectives or merely for hedging purposes from the price volatility).

Not applicable

- p) Any waivers approved by the Capital Market Authority for any investment limits and restrictions;
None

4. The Main Risks of Investing in the Fund:

- a) An investment fund is likely to be exposed to high volatility due to the formation of its investments, but the investor should know that investing in securities involves various risks. The investor should take this into consideration and be fully aware of all the terms and conditions and the Information memorandum of the fund when making an investment in the fund.
- b) The past performance of the investment fund or the previous performance of the index is not an indication of the fund's future performance.
- c) The fund does not guarantee for unit holders that the investment fund's absolute performance or its performance relative to the index will repeat or match past performance
- d) An investment in an investment fund is not a deposit with any local bank that markets or sells securities or that the fund pursues the investment.
- e) Investors are exposed to the risk of losing money when investing in the fund.
- f) The unit holder declares and bears responsibility for any financial loss that may result from investing in the fund, except in the event of intentional negligence or intentional failure by the fund manager in performing his obligations.

The following is a list of the main potential risks associated with investing in the investment fund, the risks to which the investment fund is exposed, and any circumstances that are likely to affect the fund's net asset value and returns:

- Liquidity risk: investment liquidity is low in some periods, which increases the difficulty of liquidating the Fund's investments. The low market liquidity will also negatively affect the market prices of the Fund's investments and its ability to sell some of its investments to meet its liquidity requirements, which will negatively affect the performance of the Fund and the unit price.
- Market risk: It should be known that investing in listed and traded securities is usually associated with high market volatility. Consequently, the risks associated with these

- investments are higher than the risks of investing in money markets, Murabaha and other short-term investment instruments.
- Sukuk market risks: Like other financial markets, investing in the sukuk market generally involves market risks and any change in the economic situation, the liquidity position, trends of various sectors and interest rates. These changes or developments will have effects on the prices of sovereign sukuk that are compatible with the Shariah standards in which the fund invests, which will have negative effects on the performance of the fund and the unit price.
 - Risks related to compliance with Shariah Standards: The fund manager will be forced to dispose of investments or contracts concluded with some of the parties with which he has invested in the event that the Shariah Board of the Fund Manager decides that these investments no longer meet the standards according to which the Shariah Board authorized investment in them. This will have negative effects on the performance of the fund and the unit price.
 - Economic risks and risks related to political events: The value and performance of the fund is affected by uncertainties that include unexpected political developments, political instabilities, developments in government and government policies, and governmental interference in economic activities, which will have negative effects on the performance of the fund. The performance of the fund and the unit price are adversely affected by changes in economic conditions; The fund manager does not undertake that the fund's investment strategies will achieve its investment objectives, which will have negative effects on the fund's performance and the unit price.
 - Value-added tax and zakat risks: investing in the fund leads to incurring zakat or certain taxes imposed by the competent authorities, such as value-added tax, for example, but not limited to, some of which are applicable to the fund.
 - And his investments and others apply to the investor. If a tax is imposed on the fund, the fund's assets and unit prices will decrease, which will have negative effects on the fund's performance.
 - Risks of fluctuations in interest rates: It is the risk resulting from the fluctuation of the value of financial instruments (sukuk and Murabaha) as a result of the change in interest rates. Therefore, the value of securities (sukuk and Murabaha) may be negatively affected by fluctuations in interest rates, which negatively affects the Fund's investments.
 - Conflict of Interest Risks: Cases arise in which the interests of the fund manager or related parties conflict with the interests of subscribers in the fund, which limits the ability of the - fund manager or related parties to perform his duties objectively, which negatively affects the fund.

- Legal risks: Sukuk and other investment tools that the fund invests in may be exposed to some legal risks related to non-compliance with the laws and regulations in force, which makes these investments vulnerable to legal risks, including litigation, as a result of a lawsuit filed by individuals, issuers, or companies, and accordingly, This may result in a decrease in the fund's investment value and the fund's net asset value, which will have negative effects on the fund's performance and the unit price.
 - Risks of concentration of investments: The field of sukuk in which the fund could invest is limited, given that the fund will only invest in Saudi sovereign sukuk denominated in Saudi riyals that have been approved by the Shariah Board of Al-Bilad Financial Company. Accordingly, the fund's investments are concentrated in a limited number of Saudi sovereign sukuk. This leads to a high risk of investment concentration, which will affect the net asset value of the fund due to the decrease in liquidity resulting from the concentration of the portfolio.
 - Risks of relying on the fund manager's employees: The success of investing the fund's assets depends to a large extent on the skills and expertise of the professional staff working for the fund manager. Consequently, the returns of the fund are negatively affected as a result of the change of those in charge of managing the fund.
 - Risks of deviation from the performance of the index: There are a group of factors that negatively affect the performance of the fund without affecting the performance of the index, which increases the margin of the coefficient of deviation from the performance of the index and among these factors: management fees in addition to fees for buying and selling sukuk, which negatively affects the performance of Fund and unit price. The performance of the fund may not match the performance of the index, because the fund, for example, incurs dealing fees.
 - Credit risk and investment in Murabaha funds and instruments: If the fund invests the liquidity available in the fund in money market instruments or funds, there is credit risk represented in the inability or unwillingness of the other party to pay the dues or obligations arising from it on time, which leads to Decline in fund assets and unit price. Other Murabaha funds that the fund aims to invest in are also subject to the same risks mentioned in the main risks section of this information note, and this will negatively affect the fund's investments and the unit price.

- Technical risks: The fund manager depends on the use of technology in managing the fund. However, its information systems are either compromised or attacked by viruses, or partially or completely disrupted, which limits the fund manager's ability to effectively manage the fund's investments. This will have negative effects on the performance of the fund and the unit price.
- Market Maker Risks: It is possible that the market maker may not be able to provide sufficient liquidity or provide the minimum amount of trading in the fund's units, and issue and redeem the units as required in accordance with laws and regulations, which will negatively affect the fund and its unit holders. Also, the limited number of market makers or licensed to issue and redeem units, will lead to delays in issuing and redeeming units, leading to trading of units at a premium or at a discount compared to the indicative net unit price.
- Unit price risk: the fund is a traded index fund, which means that the fund's units are subject to market fluctuations and trade at a value higher or lower than the fund's net asset value that is calculated at the end of the day, and price differences are due to the fact that the forces of supply and demand in the secondary trading market for units It will be closely related to, but not coincide, the same forces that affect the prices of the securities that make up the portfolio.
- Index risk: It is the risk resulting from changes in the index components by the provider to it, which leads to the concentration of investments in a specific sector or a specific source, and this leads to the negative impact of the performance of the fund and the unit price, more than if the fund's investment assets include categories A variety of assets or assets dependent on another sector or sectors.
- Recall and redemption risks: Some of the fund's investments in sukuk or other investment instruments may be subject to the character of recall or redemption from the source according to specific cases before their maturity date, which may push the fund manager to resort to other assets whose levels of return may be lower. The level of returns on the called asset, which may have a negative impact on the performance of the fund.
- Risks of not being able to distribute: The fund manager will rely heavily on investment decisions in choosing investments that make periodic cash distributions, but in some exceptional circumstances, the fund manager may resort to investing part of its assets in cash and cash instruments that are compatible with the controls of the Sharia committee. For example, but not limited to: Murabaha) and / or investment funds, which may lead to the fund manager not being able to distribute profits to its unit holders. This will have negative effects on the performance of the fund and the unit price.

- Valuation risks: a market that the fund manager relies on in evaluating the fund's assets from the sukuk to use the lowest price of the request when the main Saudi Stock Exchange (Tadawul) closes, in the event that no deal for the relevant instrument is executed on the valuation day, which implies the inability to evaluate the asset. At fair value which negatively affects the unit price and net asset value.
- Risks of the difference between the Supply and demand price: The investor in the fund's units may be exposed to the risk of the difference between the Supply and demand price in the event of a desire to buy or sell the fund units, due to the market maker's inability to provide liquidity for buying and selling operations in the secondary market within the permitted ratio. It is 2.00%, which may adversely affect investment returns.
- Risks of the difference in the current unit price from the net asset value of the unit: The fund units may trade at prices higher or lower than the net asset value of the unit due to the fact that the net asset value of the fund is calculated at the end of each day and changes with the change in the market value of the assets invested in it while it is traded. Fund units continuously during trading hours according to supply, demand and the value of the assets that make up the fund. This may result in trading of units at a premium or at a discount compared to the indicative net unit price.
- Suspension risk: In the event that trading in the fund's units is suspended (for any reason that the CMA may impose or deem), then the unit holder will not be able to sell his units until after the suspension has ended, which negatively affects investment returns.
- Risks of ending the fund or canceling the listing: In the event that the fund manager decides to terminate the fund or cancel the listing for any reason whatsoever, the liquidation of assets may take place at prices lower than their actual value, which will negatively affect the unit price and net asset value.

5. Mechanism for Assessing Risks

The fund manager acknowledges the existence of internal mechanism to assess the risks related to the fund's assets.

10. Valuation and Pricing

a) A statement of the valuation method of each asset held by the fund.

During the official working days of the fund manager, the net asset value of the fund's units will be evaluated by deducting the fund's liabilities from the fund's total assets, including but not limited to the previously specified fees and expenses. The unit price is determined by dividing the resulting number from this process by the total number of the fund's units existing at the date that day. The fund is evaluated on every calendar day as shown in the fund summary, provided that the valuation day is a working day for the sukuk market in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia.

The valuation method depends on the type of assets, and the fund manager may rely on reliable systems for determining values, prices and exchange rates.

The fund manager will follow the following principles to evaluate the fund's assets:

A- The sovereign Sukuk listed on the main Saudi Stock Exchange (Tadawul) is evaluated on the basis of the price of the last transaction in the market on the relevant valuation day. In the event that no deal is executed for the relevant instrument on that day, the fund manager will use the price of the highest order to close the market on the relevant valuation day.

2- The value of the fund's assets that are invested in short-term cash instruments (Murabaha) is determined on the basis of the amount deposited in addition to the profits due / accumulated until the valuation day.

3- As for the purposes of evaluating the sukuk listed on the main Saudi Stock Exchange (Tadawul) or on an automated pricing system (Bloomberg System), but the conditions of that market or that system do not allow the sukuk to be evaluated in accordance with what is mentioned in sub-paragraph (1) above, the valuation These sukuk are based on the book value in addition to the due profits of the sukuk up to the valuation day.

4- In the event that the fund invests in money market funds that are compatible with Sharia standards and are offered as a public party, the last announced unit price will be used for valuation purposes.

5- With regard to any other investment, the fund manager depends on the fair value that he determines based on the methods and rules approved by the custodian and after verification by the fund accountant.

The fund manager obtained a waiver from Article No. (71) Paragraph (e) of the Investment Funds Regulations.

b) A statement frequency of valuation and number of valuation points.
